

Abstract

A method of manufacturing an apparatus, such as a board, is provided where a shell is formed in a forming mold cavity and the shell is substantially filled with a 5 core in a filling mold cavity that substantially prevents distortion of the shell during filling.